The money was kept in his bible, which he kept locked up in his trunk. Last Monday night, after himself and wife had gone to sleep, a thief entered their residence, and breaking open the trunk, gained possession of the sacred volume, which he completely rifled of its figurcial contents. The bible was left on floor, as if the robber did not want a book which forbids stealing. It is supposed the theft was committed by some person who knew Mr. Dobbins had the money, although indications of the search made before searching the treasure show that the thief only found out by hunting the prerise place of deposit. A very important case was tried before the United States District Court, in Memphis, a few days since, in which Mre. Dr. W. T. Baily was plaintiff, and the St. Louis Mutual Life Insurance Company was defendant. The case involves a principle of law, the decision of which will prove quite useful to the holders of life policies, and those contemplating life insurance. The facts, as brought forth in the suit, are that Dr. W. T. Baily, of that city, on the 17th day of December last. petitioned the St. Louis Mutual Life Insurance Company for a life policy of $5,000, which application was accepted by the office in St. Louis, and the policy granted the premiums to be paid quarterlybut Dr. Baily, from some cause, neglected to pay the first premium; also, the second and third, which last was due June 17, 1868. During all this time, the policy was in the hands of the agents at Memphis, subject to Dr. Baily when his premium were paid in. On the 6th of July, Dr. Baily was attacked with pernicious fever, as given in evidence by Drs. Harrison. Adams and Butt, and died on the 7th. His son being informed by the physicians that death was almost certain in his father's case, procured on the 6th of July the money, and paid the premiums due and took out the policy. The Insurance Company refused to pay the policy, inasmuch as Dr. Baily was not assurable the day the policy was taken out and premiums paid. It will be seen from the dispatches this moroing, that Judge Trigg ruled that the company could not hold to the centract if Dr. Bailey lived and repudiate it if he

Of her performance on that occasion, the Gazette says:

> Madame Camilla Urso received a mos earty welcome, and every note she played carried overwhelming conviction of artistic merit. Even her violin seemed to sympathize with her pure musical temperament, and gave out its tone in rich, reconant vibrations, as if to assist her in he various undertakings. She carried her andience by storm, and yet in the most uiet and unassuming manner, winning all nearts by her simple, yet lady-like bear ing. As she stood upon the stage, playing as is her custom from memory, her brigh and cheerful, yet earnest face, sometim upturned for a single moment, as if to tch from some distant echo the effect of her exquisite tone, created an impulse that will live while memory lasts in the minds of all who really appreciate the true and eautiful in this noble branch of art.
